

Proserv has been manufacturing control systems in the UK since 1983. From that time, Proserv has gained considerable experience in system integration, delivering over 200 metering controls systems on a global scale.

A custody transfer metering system is a critical component of oil and gas industry used to measure and quantify the transfer of hydrocarbon products between parties. It ensures accurate measurement and accountability during the exchange of oil, gas, or refined products, typically between buyers and sellers or different entities within the supply chain. Custody transfer and fiscal metering systems play a pivotal role in determining the value, quantity, and quality of hydrocarbon products being transferred, and it is essential for commercial transactions and regulatory compliance.

Proserv provides the complete metering solution: independent system design, build and installation, specialising in fiscal and custody transfer metering systems, to meet the most stringent of technical requirements.

Protect your Revenue with Flow Measurement Control Systems
